Home Grown Stories, National Successes

The business climate in Wisconsin's Forest County is energized with companies whose products are marketing on the local and international stage. Over one century in the wood industry dating back to the pioneering days of the 1870's provides a distinct advantage and tradition.

These products have been produced from sustainably managed forests with practices first developed by legends such as WD Connor nearly a century ago.

Continuing Educational Opportunities.

Our 140 year history with lumber serves as a strong foundation for a great workforce, brimming with ambition and a strong work ethic. Workers here are resourceful and vastly trainable. Through our partnership with Nicolet College, with educational sites in both Crandon and within the Forest County Potawatomi Community, there is ample opportunity for continuing education and training.
